Forecast for Thursday 08 Oct 2020

Weather: A few showers over coastal ranges otherwise a mainly dry start to the morning with clear or sunny spells. Frequent showers will spread eastwards from mid-morning onwards, falling as snow above 700m. Some showers will be heavy with hail and a chance of thunder.

Chance of cloud free mountain/hill tops above 800m: 80% becoming 30% in afternoon. Patchy summit cloud in the morning but cloud bases will lower as showers arrive with frequent cloud above about 600m in west and 800m in east.

Visibility: Mainly excellent air clarity in the morning. Visibility highly variable but quickly deteriorating as showers pass through with low cloud and snow reducing it to less than 100m at times on the tops.
